We Want What's Ours Bernadette Atuahene 2014 On countless occasions in history one group with political power has taken property from a less powerful group as part of a larger strategy to dehumanize or isolate them. The colonial expropriation of property from native peoples, the Nazi confiscation of property from Hutu taking of property from Tutsis during and after the Rwandan genocide, and Saddam Hussein's seizure of property from the Kurds in Iraq all typify this enduring phenomenon. In such instances, the dispossessed are subjected to deprivations of property and dignity. Subsequent governments then had to navigate the complex landscape surrounding the return of land and other property to displaced or decimated populations. They often ignore the fact that people were deprived of their property, or they could rectify it. We Want What's Ours is a detailed study of South Africa's attempts to rectify the deprivation of land suffered by thousands of people during the colonial and apartheid regimes. It teaches a critical lesson about these transitions: remedying past injustices entails more than distributing money or even returning property, because the dispossessed did not just lose possessions, they also had their dignity taken from them. A comprehensive remedy for these 'dignity takings' involves confronting the underlying dehumanization, infantilization, and political exclusion that enabled the dispossession. That is, it requires 'dignity restoration' - a remedy based on principles of restorative justice that seeks to rehabilitate the dispossessed and reintegrate them into the fabric of society. South Africa's post-apartheid-era land dispossessions are a quintessential example of 'dignity takings', and the post-apartheid government is unique because it has sought to move beyond the more common step of only providing compensation (compensation for tangible losses) and instead has tried to facilitate the restoration of the dignity of the dispossessed. Bernadette Atuahene's detailed research, and extensive interviews with over one hundred South Africans who participated in the nation's land restitution program, demonstrates what was required for 'dignity restoration', and how successful it has ultimately been. Rooted solidly in both academic analysis and human experiences, this book serves as an invaluable resource to international organizations, government officials, bureaucrats, policy makers, NGOs, students, and scholars interested in redress for historical injustice, property rights, and conflict prevention.

Pandora's Temple Jon Land 2012-11-20 Blaine McCracken races to keep dark matter out of the wrong hands. It's a page-turner that "should be mandatory reading for all thriller aficionados" (Steve Berry, New York Times–bestselling author). Rogue special-operations agent McCracken has never been shy about answering the call, and this time it comes in the aftermath of a deepwater oil rig disaster that claims the life of a close friend and member of his commando unit. The remnants of the rig and its missing crew lead him to the inescapable conclusion that one of the most mysterious and deadly forces in the universe is to blame: dark matter, an limitless source of potential energy and an unimaginably destructive weapon. Joining forces again with his sidekick, Johnny Wareagle, McCracken races to stop two deadly enemies who want the dark matter for themselves. A powerful energy magnate and the leader of a Japanese doomsday cult both seek the ultimate prize for nefarious reasons, and McCracken and Wareagle's mission to defeat them takes the duo on a nonstop journey across the world and thousands of years into the past where the truth lies in the ancient Pandora's Temple. To safeguard the world's most powerful weapon, McCracken's only hope to save the world is to find the temple. Along the way, he and Wareagle find themselves up against Mexican drug gangs, killer robots, professional assassins, and a legendary sea monster. The hero of nine previous bestselling thrillers, McCracken is used to the odds being stacked against him, but this time the stakes have never been higher. This ebook includes an illustrated biography of Jon Land including rare images from the author's personal collection.

The Tenth Circle Jon Land 2013-12-17 Blaine McCracken races to stop terrorists from unleashing an atomic weapon of unimaginable power at the president's State of the Union speech. Blaine McCracken pulled off the impossible on a mission in Iran, but his work has just begun. Returning to the US, he faces another terror threat in the form of Reverend Jeremiah Rule, whose hateful rhetoric has inflamed half the world, resulting in a series of devastating terrorist attacks. But Rule isn't acting alone. A shadowy cabal is pulling his strings, unaware that they are creating a monster who will soon spin free of their control. Finding himself a wanted man, McCracken must draw on skills and allies both old and new to get to the heart of a plot aimed at unleashing no less than the tenth circle of hell. A desperate chase takes him into the past, where the answers he needs are hidden among history's greatest puzzles: the lost colony of Roanoke and the Mary Celeste. As the clock ticks down on a global, unthinkable maelstrom, McCracken and his trusty sidekick, Johnny Wareagle, must save the United States before the war the country didn't know it was fighting, and that it may well lose.

Twelve Years a Slave Solomon Northup 2021-01-01 "Having been born a freeman, and for more than thirty years enjoyed the blessings of liberty in a free State—and having at the end of that time been kidnapped and sold into Slavery, where I remained, until happily rescued in the month of January, 1853, after a bondage of twelve years—it has been suggested that an account of my life and fortunes would not be uninteresting to the public." Phantom Instinct Meg Gardiner 2015-06-02 From the Edgar® Award-winning author hailed by Stephen King as "the next suspense superstar" comes her new thriller with "a plot as real as your nightmares" (#1 New York Times Bestselling Author Lee Child)... One year ago, a shootout in a trendy L.A. club left bartender Harper Flynn's boyfriend dead, Sheriff Deputy Aiden Garrison shattered, and two gunmen engulfed in flames. The case is closed, why is Harper still afraid? Certain that a third gunman escaped and is targeting survivors, Harper pins her last hope on the only person willing to listen. But a traumatic brain injury has left Aiden with a terrifying disorder: a delusion that random people are actually the same person in disguise. As Harper delves deeper into the case, Harper fears that the attack might have been more personal than anyone could imagine now her only ally is unstable, paranoid, and mistrustful—because he's seeing the same enemy everywhere she looks.

The Great Connecting Jim Cashel 2019-06-11 What happens when affordable broadband finally reaches the rest of the planet that has little or no Internet access? Google, Facebook, SpaceX, and many others have major initiatives underway to connect the rest of the planet over the next few years. For the first time, even the most and most remote of global citizens will have access to information, communications, identity authentication, government programs, global philanthropy, online banking, telehealth, distance education, and other previously impossible services heretofore impossible. In The Great Connecting, Jim Cashel speaks with the major players driving the broadband revolution and travels to the most remote corners of the globe to consider the changes in store about to take place — certainly one of the biggest events in human history. As Cashel explains, the broadband offers many challenges but will also bring a remarkable opportunity for the planet.

Sociology in Our Times Dana Kendall 2016-01-01 This best-selling comprehensive book conveys the relevance of sociology by presenting a timely collection of theories, research, and examples -- including its significance in person accounts that open many chapters. The Appetites of Girls Pamela Moses 2014-06-26 For the audience that made Commencement a New York Times bestseller comes a novel about women making their way in the world. Self-doubting Ruth is coddled by her immigrant mother, who uses food to soothe and control. Defiant Francesca believes her heavy frame should be a Park Avenue society mother and, to provoke her, consumes everything in sight. Lonely Opal longs to belong in her glamorous mother's dinner dates—until a disturbing encounter forever changes her desires. Finally, a promising violinist, staves off conflict with her jealous brother by allowing him to take the choicest morsel from her plate—and from her future. College brings the four young women together as suitemates, where their strengths and appetites collide. Here they make a pact to maintain their friendships into adulthood, but each must find her own strength and her own way in the world.

Fear Nothing Dean Koontz 2007-06-15 Fear, compassion, evil, courage, hope, wonder, the exquisite terror of not knowing what will happen on the next page to characters you care about deeply—these are the ingredients Dean Koontz weaves into the unique tapestry of every novel. His storytelling talents have earned him a devoted following of fans around the world, making him one of the most popular authors of our time, with more than 200 million copies of his books sold worldwide. Christopher Snow is different from all the other residents of Moonlight Bay, different from anyone you've ever met. For Christopher Snow has made his peace with a very rare genetic disorder shared by only one thousand other Americans, a disorder that leaves him dangerously vulnerable to the dark. His life is filled with the fascinating rituals of one who must embrace the dark. He knows the night is all that else ever will, ever can—the mystery, the beauty, the many terrors, and the eerie, silken rhythms of the night. It is only at night that he is free. Until the night he witnesses a series of disturbing incidents that sweep through the violent mystery only he can solve, a mystery that will force him to rise above all fears and confront the layered strangeness of Moonlight Bay and its residents. Once again drawing daringly from several genres, Dean Koontz has created a narrative that is a thriller, a mystery, a wild adventure, a novel of friendship, a romance, a story of triumph over severe physical limitations, and a haunting cautionary tale. This ebook edition comes with a special preview of Dean Koontz's The Silent Corner.

Biologic Markers in Reproductive Toxicology National Research Council 1989-02-01 Does exposure to environmental toxicants inhibit our ability to have healthy children who develop normally? Biologic markers—indicators that can tell us when environmental factors have caused a change at the cellular or biochemical level that might affect reproductive ability—are a promising tool for research aimed at answering that important question. Biologic Markers in Reproductive Toxicology examines the potential of these markers in environmental health studies; clarifies definitions, underlying concepts, and possible applications; and suggests the benefits to be gained from their use in reproductive and neurodevelopmental research.

The Good High Schools Sara Lawrence-Lightfoot 2008-08-05 What makes a good school? A prominent Harvard educator looks for the answers in six schools that have earned reputations for excellence: George Washington Carver High School in Atlanta; John F. Kennedy High School in the Bronx, New York; Highland Park High School near Chicago; Bookline High School in Brookline, Massachusetts; St. Paul's in Concord, New Hampshire; and the Milton Academy, near Boston.

Red Rain R.L. Stine 2012-10-09 The New York Times bestselling author of the Goosebumps and Fear Street series delivers a terrifying horror novel for adults centered on a town in the grip of a sinister revolt. A writer Lea Sutter barely survives a merciless hurricane on a tiny island off the South Carolina coast, so she impulsively brings two orphaned twin boys home with her to Long Island. Samuel and Daniel seem amazingly intensely grateful at first, but no one in Lea's family anticipates the twins' true evil nature—or predicts that a few weeks' time her husband, a controversial child psychologist, will be implicated in two brutal murders. "A horror is grisly" (Associated Press) in legendary author R.L. Stine's "creepy, fun read" (Library Journal)—a homage to the millions of adult fans who grew up reading his classic series and a must-read for every fan of deviously inventive chillers.

Limiting the Magnitude of Future Climate Change National Research Council 2010-12-06 Climate change, driven by the increasing concentration of greenhouse gases in the atmosphere, poses serious, wide-ranging threats to human societies and natural ecosystems around the world. The largest overall source of greenhouse gas emissions is the burning of fossil fuels. The global atmospheric concentration of carbon dioxide, the dominant greenhouse gas of concern, is increasing by roughly two parts per million per year, and the United States is currently the second-largest contributor to global emissions behind China. Limiting the Magnitude of Future Climate Change, part of the congressionally requested America's Climate Choices suite of studies, focuses on the role of the United States in the global effort to reduce greenhouse gas emissions. The book concludes that to ensure that all levels of government, the private sector, and millions of households and individuals are contributing to shared national goals, the United States should establish a "budget" that sets a limit on domestic greenhouse emissions from 2010-2050. Meeting such a budget would require a major departure from business as usual in the way the nation produces and uses energy-and that the nation act now to aggressively deploy all available energy efficiencies and less carbon-intensive technologies and to develop new ones. Without financial incentives or regulatory pressure, the nation will continue to rely upon and "lock in" carbon-intensive technologies and systems unless a carbon pricing system is established-either cap-and-trade, a system that limits emissions, or a combination of the two. Complementary policies are also needed to accelerate progress in key areas: developing more efficient, less carbon-intensive energy sources in electricity and transportation; full-scale development of new-generation nuclear power, carbon capture, and storage systems; and an emphasis on emissions-intensive energy infrastructure. Research and development of new technologies that could reduce emissions more cost effectively than current options is also strongly recommended.

Uncommon Common Ground: Race and America's Future (Revised and Updated Edition) (American Association of University Professors Books) Angela Glover Blackwell 2010 In the so-called 'Age of Obama,' many have mistakenly declared America to now be post-racial. If only it were that simple. The reality is far more complex: we still fail to graduate one-quarter of young black men on time from high school; our Latino population has actually become a majority; and with steadily growing Asian and Native American populations, there is a broad multicultural dimension that must now be added to America's traditional black-white racial dialogue. There are perhaps no authors better suited to the task than Angela Glover Blackwell, founder of PolicyLink; Stewart Kwok, president of the Asian Pacific American Legal Center; and Manuel Pastor, professor of American Studies and Ethnicity at the University of California, San Diego. By widening the parameters of the discussion and giving this divisive issue the attention it deserves, the authors provide essential background material, the authors present readers with a crucial text, one that views race from a sociological, economic, political, and even personal perspective. Uncommon Common Ground concludes with a call for leadership, a summoning of all Americans to take up the conversation presented in this book and move forward - not toward some misty-eyed vision of collective hand-holding, but instead toward real racial equity and justice.

A Mango-Shaped Space Wendell Mass 2008-11-16 An award-winning book from the author of Jeremy Fink and the Meaning of Life and The Candymakers for fans of Wonder and Counting by Sevens Mia Winchell In A Mango-Shaped Space, synesthesia, the mingling of perceptions whereby a person can see sounds, smell colors, or taste shapes. Color Blind Colby Marshall 2014-11-04 SYNESTHESIA: A neurological condition characterized by automatic, involuntary sensory perceptions triggered by seemingly unrelated stimuli. There is something unusual about Jenna Ramey's brain, a rare perceptual quirk that punctuates her experiences with flashes of color. The hard to explain: red can mean anger, or love, or strength. But she can use these spontaneous mental impressions to understand and interpret them enough to help her read people and situations in ways others cannot. As a forensic psychiatrist, she used it to profile and catch criminals. Years ago, she used it to save her own life from her charming, sociopathic mother. Now, the FBI has detained a mass murderer and called for Jenna's help. Upon interrogation she learns that, behind bars or not, he holds the power to harm more innocents—a man obsessed with gaining power over Jenna herself. He has a partner still on the loose. And Jenna's unique ability, with its strange and subtle perceptions, may be all that can prevent a terrifying reality...

Kozav Celia Kyle 2016-09-02 Kozav found his mate and then he lost her. Now it's time to hunt... Grace is a nurse, not a doctor. But when five Preor warriors are brought to the emergency room and the doctor is killed by the aliens, she steps forward. One warrior draws her more than the others. His teal wings, muscular build, and pain-glazed eyes have her torn between two desires - needing his touch and desperation to heal him. She is determined to save the Preor males, even if it kills her. When she loses consciousness after healing them, she realizes she has more power than she thought. Kozav sen Aghin, Primary Warrior of the Preor Third Fleet, wakes on the Preor battleship fully healed but plagued by a feeling that something is wrong. And something is... Kozav's mate was left behind on Earth, alone and unprotected. Unacceptable. Kozav's guilt for his actions in the past still plague him and he is determined not to fail again. The curvaceous, green-eyed, dark haired human female is his to protect, his to claim and his to love. When someone attempts to murder Grace, Kozav is prepared to do whatever it takes to keep her safe. But what does that mean, killing one of his own. Or will it be Kozav with a sword through his chest?

Hard to Let Go Laura Kaye 2015-06-30 Five dishonored soldiers. Former Special Forces. One last mission. These are the men of Hard Ink. Beckett Murda hates to dwell on the past. But his investigation into the case that killed half his Special Forces team and ended his Army career gives him little choice. Just when he thinks he's learned how powerful their enemies are, hard-ass Beckett encounters his biggest complication yet—a sassy, feisty Katherine Rixey. A tough, stubborn prosecutor, Kat visits her brothers' Hard Ink Tattoo shop following a bad break-up—and finds herself staring down the barrel of a stranger's gun. Beckett is hard-bodied and tough as hell, but he's also the most infuriating man ever. Worse, Kat's brothers are at war with the criminals he's been investigating. When Kat joins the fight, she lands straight in Beckett's sights . . . and in his arms. Not that she's in their enemies' crosshairs. Now Beckett and Kat must set aside their differences to work together, because nothing sweeter than justice is finding love and never letting go.

Blue Cats and Chartreuse Kittens Patricia Lynne Duffy 2011-04-01 Imagine a world in which words have colors and sounds have tastes. In his autobiography, Vladimir Nabokov described this neurological phenomenon called synesthesia. It helped inspire David Hockney's sets for the Metropolitan Opera. Richard Feynman experienced it while formulating the quantum theory that won him a Nobel Prize. Sometimes described as a blending of perceptions, synesthesia occurs when only one of the five senses is aroused but two respond. Journalist Patricia Duffy draws from her own struggles and breakthroughs with synesthesia to help us better understand the phenomenon while describing some of the major theories surrounding it. An illuminating examination of the world of synesthetes, Blue Cats and Chartreuse Kittens is a must-read for science and health buffs, as well as for artists, writers, and creative thinkers—or anyone generally intrigued by the brain, the senses, and perception.
